Abstract(s):
Persistence of Czech secret non-Catholics in the 17th and 18th centuries, during the era of violent counter-Reformation, was granted primarily through their reading of protestant religious books. Some of them originated from the times before the White Mountain battle, nevertheless in the 18th century they mainly represented new editions made by Czech religious emigrants in Saxony, Silesia, Brandenburg and Hungary (Slovakia). The article concerns with Czech emigrants’ editions of Bible or its parts, which include one Biblical digest by Comenius, three full text editions from Halle, ten separate editions of the New Testament and other books, Psalms, Gospels, and moreover, for Protestant churches extraordinary, Ecclesiasticus...
